Tower's popularity clogs Hwy. 35

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

Vibrant fall foliage brought carloads of visitors to the Dorset tower during the Thanksgiving weekend, those carloads of people causing traffic jams along Highway 35 that residents reported on social media lasted up to half an hour in some cases.

While she said she was working with anecdotal information, from what she understood, "it was absolute chaos," Algonquin Highlands Reeve Carol Moffatt told the paper. "There's just too many people and not enough space."

Moffatt said Algonquin Highlands council would be having conversations on how to address the issue, including the possibility of hiring OPP officers to help deal with traffic.

While Highway 35 is a provincial asset, the situation would require paid duty police officers, hired by the township.

While the municipality has taken steps to try to mitigate congestion – moving the tower's gatehouse, reconfiguring the parking lot, etc. – it doesn't have any more space to work with.

"We don't own any more land onto which to put people," Moffatt said. "Given the problems this year, I do want to reach out into the community of Dorset. How do we do this better?"

Moffatt said if any residents had photos of the traffic, the township would be hap-

Electricity prices should level off, IESO rep says

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The cost of electricity for Ontarians should level off in coming years, says a representative from the province's Independent Electricity System Operator (IESO).

Chuck Farmer, director of stakeholder relations and public affairs for the IESO, visited Minden Hills councillors during their Oct. 13 committee-of-the-whole meeting.

While consumer electricity prices in Ontario have about doubled in the past decade, according to Farmer, this has been due to the increasing cost to the province of producing electricity.

Between 2006 and 2015, he said the total cost of electricity service in Ontario grew from $15.5 billion to $20.5 billion.

"Most of that increase is the result of building generation infrastructure," Farmer said. He said the elimination of coal-fired power plants, which the provincial government completed in 2014, contributed to the need for the construction of more power generation infrastructure.

"We do expect the cost increases to moderate," Farmer said, indicating this should be the case during the next 20 or so years. "We're expecting costs to be relatively flat, adjusted for inflation."

Reeve Brent Devolin pointed to the province's recent announcement it would cancel some $3.8 billion worth of renewable energy

Attendance up at Minden Hills Cultural Centre

by DARREN LUM
Times Staff

Recent numbers announced by the Minden Hills Cultural Centre shows it's giving people what they want, said its curator Laurie Carmount.

There have been 4,781 visitors and close to $2,200 collected with more than two months left in the year, both higher than last year's figures of 4,612 visitors and $1,100, she said.

According to Carmount, these positive results disproves any notion about the viability of the facility and shows the facility is doing well.

The attendance figures relate to the Minden Hills Museum and Heritage Village, Nature's Place, the Agnes Jamieson Gallery and the common room, which hosts various activities. This doesn't include people who visit the museum grounds without being tracked by staff.

Attendance included 170 children who attended summer day camp, which is consistent with last year. She said the children's programming is a contributor to the success and that the centre is becoming highly sought after for summer and after school programming.

Past attendance figures provided by Carmount show this year's total is not a 10-year high, but is well above the 4,500 average for the same 10-year period and far exceeds the 10-year low in 2009 when only 2,634 attended, which Carmount attributes to the economic downturn at the time.

Another component to the successful figures is related to the museum's effort to feature founding families of the area, these events highlighting a local family with significant roots in the community and includes hosting the family and a display of artifacts.

"Museums are always related to the community so much more than anything else because everything it has comes from the community," Carmount said. "So we've connected with the founding families, but now we need to pull that all together so that it is a consistent connection with them and the programming that comes with it."

With the addition of its newest staff member, Ruth O'Connell, the centre will be working to expand this year. O'Connell has experience working at the Lang Pioneer Village in Peterborough County for close to four years. The village gives visitors a living history experience and she will bring that experience to the cultural centre.

Carmount said abandoning fee admission for by-donation admission resulted in far more money being collected than anticipated.

This speaks to the generous nature of Canadians when encouraged to donate rather than be told what to give. It also speaks volumes about the support people have for the centre and the popular use by locals and visitors, including international visitors from places such as Japan and Germany. The added revenue will be put towards offsetting the costs at the facility, Carmount says.

During the centre's peak months of July and August, the summer customer service representative Krista Duncan, conducted a survey of visitors. It revealed 44 per cent of visitors were year-round residents of the county while 22 per cent were tourists and 30 per cent were seasonal residents.

"We're meeting what the community wants," Carmount said.

There will be an effort to increase the visits from everyone with a possible push to increase traffic by using social media, which she calls key.

"We have to be aware of it and try to build it," she said. Visitors only learned about the centre through social media six per cent of the time compared to 58 per cent of the time through word of mouth.

Carmount appreciated the love the facility has received, evident by the survey that showed a 100 per cent of survey respondents enjoyed their stay and said the facility is important.

"It's a great place for the kids and the family to come. It's a great opportunity. A little jewel here having all parts connected," she said.

Carmount said international visitors love to come to the centre because of how they are able to get a strong sense of the country and its history in one place.

She hopes putting greater emphasis on the living history aspect at the museum and village and giving an interactive experience to visitors will add another dimension. She wants it to prompt questions about contemporary life: Can our lives can be more sustainable, as it was for the early settlers who came before us? How is it possible to live with less? How did people manage with just clay, glass, metal, fibre and wood, instead of plastic?

O'Connell said unlike a conventional museum that shows you things, living history is all about getting people to touch and try things and to learn. Carmount said giving people an experience is a big part of marketing strategies. They want visitors to be transported back in time and to feel and re-live history.

Carmount feels all of these recent figures show how vitally important the centre is to the people who live here and those who visit.

"Now we're coming out with a sense of better ideas to go from," she said. "Things have lined up really well this year ... we're on a good footing. We have had questions in the past about our role and how we've been doing. [Now with these results] we've been doing really well."

Living history focus for new cultural centre assistant

by DARREN LUM
Times Staff

Behind every item there is a story, said the Minden Hills Cultural Centre's newest staff member Ruth O'Connell.

The young woman with a large smile speaks glowingly about the heirlooms in her family, whether it is the Second World War military medals earned by her grandfather or her grandmother's Singer electric portable sewing machine from the 1960s. It was used it to sew costumes for theatrical productions and the stage curtain at the Orillia Opera House where her mother and uncle acted.

O'Connell, who is originally from a large Irish family that mainly resides in Durham Region, wants to reveal the cultural and historical mysteries of the significant artifacts in the collection with her new job as the curatorial assistant to cultural centre curator Laurie Carmount.

O'Connell welcomes the opportunity to contribute and be part of the community, using this job to further what she has learned from her University of Waterloo art history undergraduate degree and museum studies education from Fleming College, and her recent work educating people using living history at the Lang Pioneer Village in Peterborough County.

"Connecting people to the history they have is really important because it shows pride and helps people develop a pride," O'Connell said. "That's why collection management and living history are really important because collection management helps you understand why an object might be associated with yourself and you might have not known why that object would be important to your own history."

There are things from the past that have a relevance to the present, which are connected like a chain.

O'Connell sees the value of history in how it can teach, whether it's to not repeat mistakes or to move forward from lessons in history.

With her experience at the village in Lang, she welcomes the opportunity to expand on offering more living history in Minden. It's a concept that allows visitors an opportunity to learn by touching and doing. A contrast to the conventional museum.

Getting to work at the centre that includes the Minden Hills Museum and Heritage Village, the Agnes Jamieson Gallery and Nature's Place, gives her an opportunity to tap into her education, skills and experience, but also to grow and learn more.

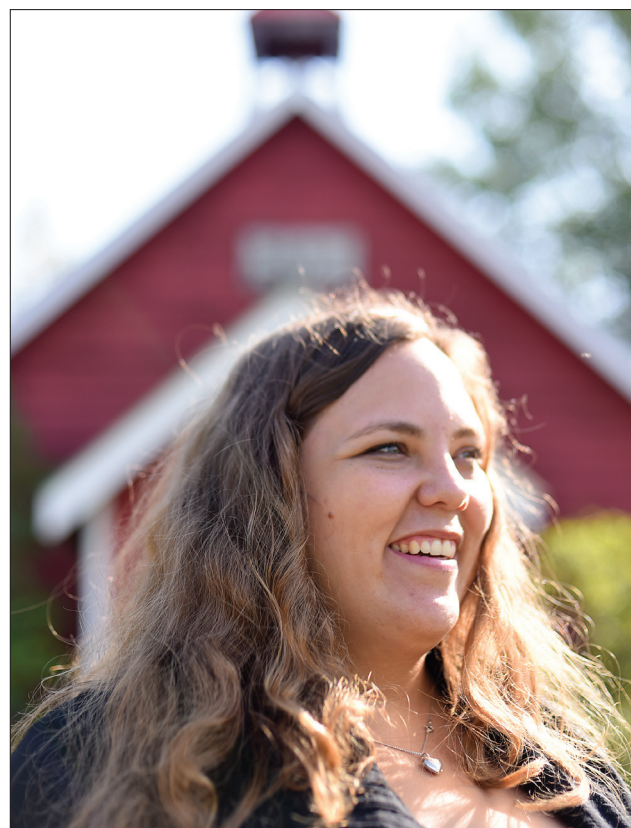

"That was a real plus for me," she said. "I like opportunities where I can learn and develop what skills I have, but also learn new skills. That's why I chose this place."

Outside of work she loves to paint, crochet, knit and sew, using the same sewing machine as her grandmother, who passed it on to her.

With her aunt and uncle Shirley and David Barker living in West Guilford the last 10 years, O'Connell already has a connection to the area. Until she finds a permanent residence she will be living with them.

O'Connell was hired in a process that began this past summer and included a redrafting of the position previously held by Victoria Bingham, who was the collection manager for the centre.

The new position is rooted in flipping the emphasis from a focus on management to bringing people in touch with the past.

Ruth O'Connell is the new curatorial assistant at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre. For nearly the past four years, she's worked at Peterborough's Lang Pioneer Village. DARREN LUM Staff projects in order to save Ontarians an average of $2.45 off their monthly electricity bills.

"Is cancellation saying, in terms of capacity . . . we have what we need to meet capacity?" asked Devolin, who sits on the Parry Sound/Muskoka advisory committee to the IESO.

"That doesn't mean there won't be a need to do more renewable energy," Farmer said, adding that the province should have adequate capacity for at least the next six to eight years.

Councillor Pam Sayne told Farmer she was concerned the province's feed-in tariff (FIT) program seemed to benefit certain companies.

She asked Farmer if the IESO was tracking the number of Ontarians who are choosing to get off the grid altogether, powering their own homes with self-sufficient setups.

"I wonder if that's something that's being measured by the IESO, people who want off the grid completely," Sayne said. "We have people who are weighing between paying their electricity bills and heating, and winter's coming up again."

We have people who are weighing between paying their electricity bills and heating.

— COUNCILLOR PAM SAYNE

Farmer said the IESO is conducting micro-grid pilot projects with a number of municipalities.

"As far as grid defection itself, we see this trend coming," he said. "This is a very significant issue for the province to deal with."

Chief administrative officer Lorrie Blanchard wanted to know what happened to the infrastructure of FIT projects when their lifespans were up. Contracts are typically for 20-year periods. "Is the IESO considering what might be done with this equipment at the end of the day?" Blanchard asked.

"Generally, all generation contracts put a requirement on the owner of the facility to decommission," Farmer said. "So everybody is accountable for what they do. At the end of 20 years, they may still be a useful facility, it just doesn't have a contract."

Devolin, who's said repeatedly that municipalities should reap some benefit of FIT projects within their borders, said it would be unfair for the facilitation of that decommissioning process to fall to townships.

"The benefits do not accrue to us, so the costs should not accrue to us," he said.

py to see them in order to better strategize.

The township has also been working with the Ministry of Transportation and the MNRF, which manages provincial parks, on solutions to traffic congestion issues at the entrance to Algonquin Park.

As reported in the Times earlier this year, long traffic jams along Highway 60 have resulted in park visitors urinating on the properties of residents of Oxtongue Lake, as well as collisions, some fatal. The congestion then causes delays for Algonquin Highlands Fire Services, as well as OPP and EMS crews, in getting to the scenes of those collisions.

As a result of conversations with the ministries, Moffatt said short-term and long-term plans have been identified, including a traffic analysis of the park's west gate, the addition of more washrooms and the widening of the highway.

"I consider it a bit of a democratic win," Moffatt said. "It's a starting point."

As for the tower in Dorset, council will be discussing potential remedies before next autumn's foliage display. "We're now faced with finding resolution for our own success," Moffatt said of the tower's popularity. "That speaks to what Haliburton County is inevitably facing. What if you throw a party and no one comes? What if you throw a party and everyone comes, and brings their brother?"

County tourism staff to hit the road

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

As Haliburton County prepares to close its tourist information centre along Highway 35 in Minden later this year, it looks like tourism staff will be heading out into the community, hitting events armed with information as the municipality employs a new strategy.

At the recommendation of the county's tourism director, councillors decided earlier this year they would close the centre, a space the municipality leases from the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, at the end of 2016.

A report from tourism director Amanda Virtanen showed that in 2015 there were 3,700 visitors to the centre, 30 per cent of whom were there solely to use the washroom. Excluding the salary of the county's tourism clerk – who will continue in her position and work from the county office on Newcastle Street – the centre cost $61,200 to operate for the year.

"Would we ever spend $62,000 on an ad that reaches 3,000 people?" was the way Virtanen put it to tourism committee members, noting that other small communities have been closing visitor information centres, and that distribution of guides and maps could be done out of the county office, as well as the county's library branches and local businesses.

Many people, she noted, now find this tourist information online.

In the ensuing months, members of the tourism committee have been having conversations about how to fill the void some believe will be left by the closure of the centre.

In a June report, Virtanen suggested alternatives including electronic kiosks, however, some committee members were hesitant, citing concerns around vandalism and the loss of human interaction.

"I'm now presenting a slight variation of what I've presented in the past," Virtanen told tourism committee members during an Oct. 12 meeting, noting the concerns around losing the human touch when interacting with visitors. "So we are going to go to them with a human being, rather than having them come to us. We're going to start fishing where the fish are."

The idea is that tourism staff, dressed in the county's #MyHaliburtonHighlands Roots clothing collection, will head out to locations armed with collapsing sandwich boards, iPads, brochures and others resources to inform people what's happening in the community and answer any questions they may have.

"It's not a huge leap for our team to become event-rovers," Virtanen said.

She stressed staff will attend events and locations where people are spending leisure time, and therefore more apt to pay attention. So staff will not be stationed outside grocery stores or hardware stores, where consumers are on a mission, but rather somewhere like Kawartha Dairy, where people are waiting in line.

They will also be stationed at local farmers' markets, various festivals, dogsledding events, etc.

"They will be at events where people are wandering," Virtanen said. "Hike Haliburton would be great for this. They will also get a traffic counter and that will help measure success."

There was some skepticism among committee members.

"I think there's a paramount problem that we are creating," said committee member and local accommodator Sally Moore, referring to the loss of the washroom along Highway 35. "I'm wondering what we're doing to resolve that."

"I think we can get around that," said Algonquin Highlands Reeve and County Warden Carol Moffatt. "There are enough places to go to the washroom."

Moffatt also questioned whether it was really the municipality's job to ensure there was a public washroom in Minden and noted there are not washrooms at other entry points to the county.

"The visitor centre located in Minden does not serve the entire county and yet the entire county pays for it," she said.

Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin indicated there are publicly available washrooms within Minden and, within a few years, would be new, modern ones, if things go according to plan.

Moore was also concerned that the new approach seemed to focus on weekends and said she worried it would mean missing weekday traffic.

"Days of the week are less important than when the events are," Virtanen said.

Moore also said there were business owners who would like their businesses to act as gateway stops, sort of de facto visitor centres where tourism information could be available.

Virtanen pointed out that the county's destination guide, the only tourism material produced by the municipality itself is widely available throughout the community.

"I don't think there's a single business where you can't find it," she said.

"I struggle to understand that anyone

So we are going to go to them with a human being, rather than having them come to us. We're going to start fishing where the fish are.

would be arriving in the Highlands blank," Moffatt said, adding she thought at this point in time, most people had done their research online before arriving in the community.

In the end, committee members were supportive of trying out the new concept.

"There's some merit to it," said Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearrey. "I just can't get my head around how it's going to work."

"Go out on a limb, shake it up, see how it works," said Moffatt.

Virtanen also gave committee members a look at the 2017 branding and marketing plan, which will include continuing to build the #MyHaliburtonHighlands brand, as well as incorporate new promotional ideas such as postage stamps and specially created emojis for use in text messages.

Virtanen is also planning to take advantage of Facebook's live video function, create an "ask a local" video series and for the county to make use of other social media platforms, such as Instagram and Periscope.

THE THINKER?

Rough ride for rural Ontario

IT'S A TOUGH TIME to be a rural Ontarian.

In a province where a continually greater percentage of the population lives in urban areas, a continually greater percentage of legislators represent urban constituencies.

Small communities don't have the same pull in Queen's Park they did decades ago and the reality is that most of the people setting provincial policy don't understand the unique challenges and struggles of rural regions.

Take the price of electricity, and the Wynne government's delayed reaction to it, as an example.

It took a by-election loss this summer in a GTA riding long held by the Liberal party to get the Premier to take any action on Hydro One bills.

Campaign teams said the price of electricity was the No. 1 issue they heard about as they went knocking on people's doors.

The price of electricity has been a major issue in Haliburton County and other rural communities for several years. While wages in these areas are typically lower than in cities, people pay more for power because of "delivery charges" from Hydro One. With bills into the hundreds of dollars a month for some households, many of us know people who've been pushed to the brink of deciding whether to pay their hydro bill or heat their home for the month. Or resorted to the use of the food bank in order to keep the lights on.

This for a utility that is a basic necessity of life in North America.

Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MPP Laurie Scott actually has a staff member whose primary function it is to field calls and answer correspondence regarding hydro bills.

To say that the Wynne/McGuinty government has mishandled the energy file in this province is an understatement. And while it's true it inherited some complications from its predecessors, this is a government that has now been in power for 13 years and which, during the last decade, has allowed electricity prices in Ontario to double to become the highest on the continent.

Many Ontarians cannot pay their hydro bills and are in collective arrears to the tune of nearly $200 million.

The auditor general has said that since 2006, Ontarians have been overcharged $37 billion for electricity due to overpriced green energy, poor planning and the sloppy mess that is Hydro One itself.

Those may not have been her exact words.

The mismanagement of Hydro One is a column onto itself. There's not enough room to get into it here.

The point is that while rural communities have been crying foul over electricity rates for years and years, it took that albatross coming home to roost in the GTA for the province to actually do anything about it.

Wynne has said the government will cancel some $3.8 billion in green energy projects to save Ontarians a whopping $2.45 on their electricity bills and additional relief has been promised for those in rural areas.

With the 2018 election beginning to show on the distant horizon, it would behoove the Premier to pay closer attention to the needs of all Ontarians.

Lest the lights go out on her.

Skunk savvy

WHEN YOU HUNT with a bow and arrow for deer, it shouldn't really be all that complicated. First, you find a comfortable spot downwind of a food source or along a travel corridor between a bedding and feeding area. Then, you can either sit high in a tree stand or low in a ground blind. After that, you stay very still and wait for deer to pass by.

Unfortunately, skunks complicate all this.

And, lately, I've been seeing a lot of skunks. Actually, I suspect it's the same skunk over and over again. Of course, that doesn't really matter because, in my books, even one skunk constitutes a lot.

I'm going to be very clear on this.

It is not what the skunk does that makes a hunter nervous. It is what the skunk has the potential to do — make you late for dinner.

Piss off a raccoon and all you've got is something interesting to talk about at dinner. Piss off a skunk and you are eating dinner outside, three hours late — and, perhaps even 100 yards downwind. Worse still, there will be a whole lot of tomato juice included in that meal.

The question then is how do we avoid upsetting skunks? I think the main issue is surprises.

In my experience, skunks are not all that big on surprises. That's unfortunate because when you are sitting in a deer stand you are actually going to great effort to surprise a deer. That's why you hide, wear camouflage, sit silently and try to remain downwind.

When a skunk gets close, however, one poorly timed sneeze or a call on your cell-phone is pretty well the equivalent of jumping out from behind the couch with a party hat on your head and sparkler in hand while yelling, "Surprise!"

Skunks react accordingly. Worse still, as I mentioned, you are downwind from the ambush site.

That's why some bow hunters will change stand location if a skunk is a resident of the area. Other hunters are optimists who ask the question: what's the worst thing that can go wrong?

The answer is that the skunk in question can spray you.

On the plus side, if you have ever spent two weeks in deer camp, you'll realize this is not all that different. In fact it might even cause you to reminisce fondly about the last day of camp.

Heck, if you are going to look on the bright side, you should also consider that some hunters pay good money to purchase skunk cover scents to fool deer.

Admittedly, not everyone is a confirmed bachelor, but you get the point, right?

Another bonus is, if a deer is unsure whether it should approach the area of your stand, all it needs to do is see a skunk nearby. Most deer take that as proof that there will be no surprises. You could, of course, theoretically arrow a deer as it stands beside a skunk. But all the commotion that follows might ensure that you are late for dinner and that every venison recipe you use on that deer includes lots of tomato juice.

It's not something most of us prepare for, but every bowhunter is, at one time or another, faced with this situation. All you need to do is keep your cool and let the skunk and deer pass.

When that happens, you can breathe easy.

IN OTHER WORDS

Columns and Letters to the Editor

Blowin' in the Wind

IT WAS A WEEK OF GOOD NEWS AND BAD NEWS.

First came the good, and surprising, news that singer-songwriter Bob Dylan was awarded the Nobel prize for literature. Dylan's songs changed popular culture. His lyrics became hymns for the civil rights and anti-war movements.

The bad, and also surprising, news was that yet another fine journalist is out of a job. Lee-Anne Goodman, a reporter who epitomizes bartender Dooley's famous quote - "The job of the newspaper is to comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable" is out at The Canadian Press, the country's venerable news service.

Thousands of journalists have lost their jobs in recent years. The reason I mention Ms. Goodman is that I worked with her for a number of years and respect her work. She reports stories that we all need to know in these complicated times, eschewing the easy bubbles and fluff crap that we see too much of these days.

When excellent journalists are pushed aside, society as a whole suffers. Excellent journalism truly is a pillar of democracy and when journalism is eroded, so is democracy.

What's happening in journalism is more than erosion. It is disintegration. In the United States 25,000 journalists have been laid off since 2005 while digital publishers have created only 7,000 jobs.

Those figures come from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The Canadian Media Guild reports 10,000 jobs cut from the print and broadcast industries between 2008 and 2013. The Guelph Mercury and Nanaimo Free Press dailies were shuttered earlier this year.

Postmedia, which owns two daily newspapers in several cities has combined staffs in Ottawa, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver for a loss of 90 jobs.

The Toronto Star cut 52 journalism positions in August. Rogers Media has said it will print Maclean's magazine only once a month, and an online version once a week. It is closing some other titles.

Fewer journalists means less poking and probing, uncovering and reporting information that citizens need to know. Like when Chad Ingram of this newspaper fought for and won access to the multi-million dollar contract between the province and Carillion Canada Inc., which county residents believe has provided sub-standard winter highway maintenance.

As news outlets and journalists disappear, journalism retracts into the tight, homogenous thinking of big cities, like Toronto, Canada's centre of journalism elitism. Toronto journalism knows little and cares little about anything beyond the metro area borders.

People in Guelph and Nanaimo and many other places like them are being deprived of information and viewpoints they must have to tell them what is happening and to form ideas on how to fix problems.

News media black holes are widening across the country. We hear and read less from other parts of our country and what problems they face, what successes they enjoy.

News executives, panicked by the ascent of digital news and the advertising it is drawing away from them, are dumping journalists to save money. The more they cut, the further the dumbing down of their news reports.

They are focused on ways to regain lost revenues. What they need to focus on is providing stories so important, so compelling, so well reported and written that people are willing to pay for them. That type of thinking is beginning in other parts of the world, but regrettably not in Canada.

The collapse of journalism and its weakening of democracy has caught the attention of government. The House of Commons heritage committee is studying the news media crisis and is expected to make some recommendations this fall. Other government studies - the Kent Royal Commission on Newspapers and the Davey Special Committee on Mass Media - have done nothing but collect dust.

Meanwhile, astute observers of the news industry expect that most printed daily newspapers will be gone within the next 10 years.

While politicians ponder their belly buttons and news executives panic, questions go unanswered.

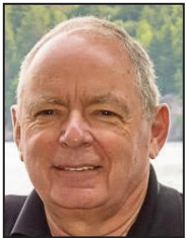

Like, how many injustices exist out there with too few journalists to see? The answer is same one Bob Dylan wrote four decades ago.

"The answer my friend is blowin' in the wind.

The answer is blowin' in the wind."

Addicted to wasting time

I CANCELLED MY NETFLIX subscription. I was falling down the vortex of the ultimate time waster. I admit it: I am a TV-aholic. I can't sit in a room with a television on and participate in a focused conversation. It was going from bad to worse. In the moment it doesn't seem critical, and then you realize you have finished a season of 24 in a week, and it was 24 episodes long. There's no getting that time back.

Beyond wasting time, the effects on the human body are truly depressing.

Let's start with calorie consumption. Generally speaking, a person weighing 150 pounds will burn 68 calories while watching an hour of television. That is just 10 calories more than what the human body uses to stay alive in that same period of time. That is, the calories consumed to keep organs functioning, blood flowing, etc. Perhaps that doesn't sound like a big deal until you add the snacks that you may consume while you're watching television. There it is - the perfect storm for weight gain.

The bad stuff doesn't stop there. Let's consider the effects of the blue light emitted from those screens that we are glued to. This is where things get really scary.

That blue light is great during the daylight hours. It boosts our energy levels, and our moods. But, our bodies use light to determine the difference between day and night. When the blue light is present at night it keeps us awake, and that throws off our biological clock. It's known as the circadian rhythm. When that is out of whack our sleep suffers, and then we suffer! No amount of coffee will fix that!

"Your net worth to the world is usually determined by what remains after your bad habits are subtracted from your good ones." ~ Benjamin Franklin

The best thing to do, is to get away from those screens as much as you can, especially after the sun goes down. Be realistic about using them. I sure have a lot more time, and the house is cleaner than it's been in while.

Something to think about.

No ifs, ands or butts: put discarded cigarettes in their place

If the risks of deadly second-hand cigarette smoke are obvious, why don't we realize the harm posed by the trillions of used cigarette butts tossed out every year?

The T in trillions isn't a typo. A study published in March 2016 in the Tobacco Control medical journal suggests nearly five trillion cigarette butts are thrown away globally each year, making them "the most commonly discarded waste product in the world."

In a recent column, environmentalist David Suzuki questions why we are so careless. He notes that people who would never consider littering seem to have no qualms with flicking cigarettes butts away without regard for where they land. The problem may seem trivial, Dr. Suzuki suggests, but it's not.

He raises a good point. Would we use the same approach for disposing of old pesticides, medical waste or unused paints as we do cigarette butts? Likely not.

The fact is that discarded cigarette butts are more than an eyesore. They end up tossed onto the ground, leeching into soil or getting washed into storm drains where they pollute water.

Cigarette butts can also be toxic to young children, pets and wildlife. When swallowed by a child, the nicotine in cigarette butts can be poisonous or lead to vomiting, nausea, gagging, and a pale or flushed appearance. Animals are also at risk of nicotine poisoning and suffering similar discomforts if they ingest cigarette butts.

While the paper and tobacco in cigarette butts are biodegradable, filters take longer to break down - meaning the environmental threat posed by cigarettes can last for years.

Then there is the potential fire hazard of tossing a still-lit cigarette butt out a car window or flicking it into bushes. Imagine the damage that could be done in extremely hot and dry conditions like those we experienced this past summer.

Many governments are seeking solutions to this burning issue. In October, Toronto city council approved a bylaw requiring business owners to clean up cigarette butts outside of their establishments or install outdoor disposal bins for cigarette butts. Failure to obey the new bylaw could result in a $300 fine. In Vancouver, a cigarette butt recycling program has been operating since 2013. The pilot program has seen more than 100 cigarette recycling receptacles set up around the downtown area for smokers to dispose of their butts. To date, more than 200 pounds of cigarette butts have been collected in these receptacles for recycling.

Smokers can do their part too by ensuring cigarette butts are completely extinguished and safely disposed of in ashtrays. While these butts will likely wind up as garbage going to municipal landfills, at least they end up in engineered facilities designed to safely store waste products.

By butting out completely, smokers can make an even bigger difference by cutting off the source of the problem. While quitting is never easy, the health unit (www.hkpr.on.ca) has many quit-smoking support programs and resources to help.

Let's move our collective butts to act, realizing cigarettes are both a health and environmental hazard!

Minden Hills OPP bill approaches $2M

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

The following are brief reports of items discussed during an Oct. 13 Minden Hills committee-of-the-whole meeting.

Minden Hills' OPP bill for 2017 will be $1.95 million, up more than $104,000 from its 2016 bill, which totalled about $1.85 million.

That increase will amount to a 1.52 per cent increase in the township's tax levy, which will most likely be passed directly to taxpayers.

OPP officers received a 2.65 per cent wage increase for 2015 and 1.95 per cent wage increase for 2016. Under an arbitrated wage settlement with the Ontario Provincial Police Association, officers will receive a 1.9 per cent increase for 2017 and a 1.75 per cent increase for 2018.

Revising renewable energy policy

Council will be reexamining Policy 100, the township's renewable energy policy, to make it more expedient and straight-forward for staff.

"I look to council to review this policy," planner Ian Clendening told councillors.

"Obviously, it has to work for staff," said Reeve Brent Devolin. "It has to be understandable. I would definitely like to see some further work."

Devolin also said that having all of the renewable energy project proposals received by the township reviewed by its renewable energy task force is proving impractical since feed-in tariff (FIT) program applications typically come with such a constricted time period attached.

"They're not all going to the task force. It just can't happen," Devolin said. "If you send them all there, it becomes another level of bureaucracy."

Expanding social media presence

"Our social media currently only resides with the cultural centre," community services director Mark Coleman told councillors.

The Minden Hills Cultural Centre operates Facebook and Twitter accounts to promote its activities.

Under new website management and social media policies, the township will create corporate, administrative Facebook and Twitter accounts, as well as Facebook and Twitter accounts for the Minden Hills Community Centre.

Moving quonset hut

The township will pay Fowler Construction $150,000 for the relocation of the quonset hut once located near the arena parking lot to a new location near the ball diamonds.

A total of $80,000 had been budgeted for the project.

The building had to be moved to make way for the affordable housing complex currently under construction near the arena.

The largest part of that bill, nearly $75,000, is for the pouring of a new, engineered concrete slab. There will also be a storage room extension for $25,000.

Fowler had the only qualifying bid for the job.

Looking at tendering Hike Haliburton co-ordination

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

It looks as though local experience brokerage Yours Outdoors will get the contract for the 2017 Hike Haliburton Festival, although at least one member of county council thinks the job should be put out for tender.

During an Oct. 12 Haliburton County tourism committee meeting, members recommended that Yours Outdoors, which has orchestrated the county's signature hiking event for many years, receive the contract for next year's festival.

Recommendations from advisory committees must be passed by county council, although it's rare that the recommendation of a committee is overturned by council.

The contract for the 2017 event is for $15,000.

Minden Hills Reeve Brent Devolin said in the future, he'd like to see the job put up for bid, rather than sole-sourced.

"As elected officials, we get comments from time to time, that somebody gets exclusivity or ownership," Devolin said, adding it was about optics.

"Then we have to be prepared to pay for that," said committee member Sally Moore, suggesting any other consultant would charge much more.

Devolin said he realized the cost value, but reiterated it was about optics.

County Warden Carol Moffatt said the job had gone out to tender in the past, and had been awarded to Yours Outdoors, but that the municipality could do it again.

The 2016 Hike Haliburton Festival, its 14th annual incarnation which ran Sept. 22 to 25, was the largest yet, with a total of 1,900 spaces reserved for 80 guided hikes, an increase of 24 per cent over the previous year. There were a total of 2,693 participants in the festival's hikes and events.

HCDC loans $4.4 million to community

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

During the 2015/16 fiscal year, the Haliburton County Development Corporation distributed some $4.4 million worth of loans in the community, helping to create or maintain 167 jobs.

Those were some of the figures delivered at HCDC's 31st annual general meeting, held Oct. 12 at Carnarvon's Rhubarb restaurant.

"Very often we take your vision . . . and we get behind it and we try to help in any little way we can," HCDC board chairman Andrew Hodgson said as he addressed the room.

The corporation received 90 loan applications for the past fiscal year, two that were declined and 11 of which were withdrawn, leaving 77 that were approved.

HCDC's average loan size is $39,000.

Seven of those loans were in Algonquin Highlands, 41 in Dysart et al, 25 in Minden Hills, one in Highlands East, while three were given out in other areas.

Some business development projects included McFadden's Meat Market, Skye Cycle and BeBe Bartoons.

Along with loans and grants for community innovation projects, HCDC also continues to operate the Creative Business Incubator, located in the former Dysart library in Haliburton Village. The incubator is currently home to digital media companies Sticks and Stones Productions and Digital Reno Agency, as well as the headquarters for SPARC – the Symposium for Performing Arts in Rural Communities.

According to HCDC, in the past year the incubator has provided 6.5 full-time jobs, three seasonal jobs and five, part-time, contract positions.

HCDC is funded through the federal government and also leverages its investment income.

Executive director Andy Campbell said the Internet is changing the nature of entrepreneurship and investing, but that HCDC still has an important role to play.

"There will be a lot of changes out there, but in our community, it's about working with people and those relationships," Campbell said.

HCDC board chairman Andrew Hodgson speaks at the corporation's annual general meeting at Rhubarb Oct. 12. Last year HCDC dispersed $4.4 million worth of loans in the community.

Since its inception in 1986, HCDC has dispersed nearly 1,800 loans totalling more than $72 million. It has earned nearly $14 million in interest and carries a loan loss rate of about four per cent.

The meeting's guest speaker was Grant Roughley of the North Frontenac Telephone Company, which is currently constructing a fibre optic network for businesses in downtown Haliburton. The project is Phase 1 of the company's plan to potentially outfit the entire village with broadband, high-speed Internet.

"Each phase has to be analyzed in terms of the business model," Roughley said.

The company is hoping to construct a similar network in Minden.

Editor's note: North Frontenac Telephone Company is 50 per cent owned by London Publishing Corporation. London Publishing Corporation shares the same ownership as White Pine Media, which in turn owns the Minden Times and Haliburton Echo.

Share a seat for Rideshare Week

by CHAD INGRAM
Times Staff

“It’s about neighbours helping neighbours,” says Kate Hall. “Our greatest transportation resource is the empty seats in people’s cars.”

Hall is part of Haliburton County’s Rural Transportation Options (RTO), which is promoting its inaugural Rideshare Week, encouraging the art of carpooling, from Oct. 24 through 30.

“We know ridesharing is already happening and we want to encourage it more,” Hall says.

The RTO is encouraging people to share rides as often as possible, including co-workers carpooling to and from the workplace.

“We do get a lot of people contacting us saying they’re looking for transportation to work,” Hall says.

The weeklong event is meant to raise awareness of and promote ridesharing as a transportation option in a rural community. Often, Hall notes, people from all over the county are heading to common destinations on a daily basis.

Sharing rides is also better for the environment, creating less pollution, and can save money.

Church congregations are also encouraged to participate and the RTO is urging churches to issue friendly challenge to neighbouring churches to see who can get the most people to share a ride to church on Sunday, Oct. 30.

Participation in the Rideshare Week Church Challenge can be confirmed by emailing Hall at info@haliburtonrideshare.ca

Along with the church challenge there will be prizes handed out for the individual who shared the most rides during the week; a driver who successfully arranged a ride through the Haliburton Rideshare website; a passenger who successfully shared a ride through the Haliburton Rideshare website; and the workplace with the highest percentage of staff participation.

There will also be a prize draw using the names of all who participate. Participant tracking forms can be obtained by emailing Hall and must be returned by Nov. 4.

Girls bring home silver at Pink the Rink

The Parkview Dental/Canadian Tire Bantam Jets spent this past weekend playing some exciting hockey in the Etobicoke Pink the Rink Tournament. The team started off with their first game Friday against the West Oxford Inferno. The girls put forth a solid effort taking the win by a score of 5-0. The first goal of the game was scored by Haley Goulet, assisted by Alannah Eastman. The team came on strong in the third period with Hannah McMann scoring, assisted by Beth Brownlee, which started the girls off on a scoring streak. Carling Pepin, assisted by Paige Billings, Goulet assisted by Marissa Cannon and Paige Billings, unassisted, all added to the team victory. Stellar goaltending was performed by Courtney Semach throughout the game and produced a shutout.

The second game saw some more fast paced hockey with the girls playing the North Bay Ice Boltz. The girls worked hard resulting in a game tie of 1-1. The Jets' lone goal was scored by Carling Pepin, assisted by Marissa Cannon.

Saturday afternoon saw the Jets' play their third game against the Nepean Wildcats. The girls played hard but came up short falling 3-0 to the Wildcats. The girls later took on the Bluewater Sharks and wanting to recover from their previous loss with the championship game within their reach, they came out on top winning 4-1. Scoring for the Jets were Paige Billings, Jaylin Frost with two, and Olivia Martin. Semach once again was solid and strong between the pipes throughout the game. The championship game on Sunday saw the Jets in a rematch with the Nepean Wildcats. Again, despite their best efforts, the Jets came up short losing to the Wildcats 4-0. A big thank you goes to our sponsors who support this team, the coaching staff and the parents who helped ensure the team had a successful and fun weekend. The girls played a great weekend of hockey and a great TEAM effort was put forth by all of the girls resulting in bringing the silver home.

EIC pleased with school board's progress

by Ariel White

The Trillium Lakelands District School Board has received passing grades, over the first term of its operation, from the Education Improvement Commission. The provincial body assessed the school board in June to determine whether the board has made a smooth transition from three separate school boards to one unified body.

The Education Improvement Commission has been travelling throughout the province for several months, appraising the new school boards' progress. Each assessment is comprehensive, and includes interviews with teachers, board employees, students and parents, as well as a lengthy report and presentation by the board and directors of education.

The EIC looked favourably on the early work of the Trillium Lakeland school board to harmonize its business and education practices. One of the board's earliest mandates was to ensure that as many programs as possible were available to students in all three districts.

"I had a good feeling about it when we made the presentation (to the

Chamber gets boost $46,500 from county

The Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce pitch for $46,500 in marketing funding from the county met with County Council's approval.

Chamber president Brian Kernohan and Marketing Committee chair Dennis Casey approached council, last Wednesday asking for funding for eight projects ranging from $3,000 to $10,500.

"We need to focus on winter season marketing," Kernohan told council. He noted that there is virtually no accommodation available during several weeks in the summer.

"The world is going by this county and it's going to take a lot of money to keep up," Casey insisted. The areas where the Chamber will be concentrating its efforts, thanks to the funding provided by the county, include:

Nordic skiing

The Chamber received $4,000 to enter a $60,000 project with other partners to market the nordic ski trails in Haliburton County.

"The trails here are second to none," Kernohan said. "If we can get the people up here, they'll come back. We have superior facilities."

It was noted that nearly three-quarters of a million people in Ontario are nordic skiers.

Maple syrup

A proposal to market the local maple syrup industry received council's approval for the expenditure of $3,000. The money will be used to help promote the spring MapleFest event in partnership with maple syrup producers and other local businesses that wish to participate in the spring tour of facilities. Funds would be spent on printed matter to be handed out at winter and spring shows, website and radio promotion.

Fins and Skins

The Chamber asked for $4,000 for its share of a partnership with TSN and two local businesses to produce a half-hour program for a series entitled "Fins and Skins Worldwide Inc." The local segment would showcase fishing and golf in the Highlands. It was pointed out that fishing and golf are the top two participation sports in North America.

The series would run from January to December 2000.

The Chamber would have access to the local segment for promotional purposes.

Algonquin/Victoria partnership

The Chamber will use the $7,000 county council approved for the Algonquin Park and Victoria County partnership to market "The Centre in Central Ontario" theme along the Highway 35 corridor and the southern entrance into Algonquin Park. The goal is to help promote the new businesses that are starting to develop in that area.

Business development and enhancement

The Chamber plans to develop partnerships with businesses both inside and outside Haliburton County to provide seminars and educational opportunities to the business community. Among the opportunities would be financial skills, marketing for export, management skill seminars and the provision of areas to get information that small to medium businesses require.

Council approved $3,500 for the purpose.

Year 2000 promotions

A total of $14,000 will be required to participate in MET publication through the new Partners in Tourism program. The group provides exposure through events guides and the Ontario Discovery Guide. Although this partnership will require $14,000, the Chamber asked for only $10,500, which was approved.

Economic development

A request for $8,500 to attend a minimum of three trade shows or economic forums and to produce a promotional brochure was also approved.

Get ghoulish for the Kinmount Halloween party

AROUND THE TOWN

Patti Fleury

705-488-2938 brucefleury1@hotmail.com

Here at the old farmhouse we continue to marvel at the spectacular show of colours along the Galway Road and into Kinmount. What a delight our Ontario fall must be for newcomers to the area. Every so often I spot what in my mind is a Grade 5 stereotype tree. These trees were the product of our art class efforts – usually a tall maple carefully decorated with equal patches of orange, red and yellow standing beside a brick red barn. Grade 5 was a favourite year. Under Miss McLaughlin's watchful eye (and ever handy yardstick) we sailed with the Vikings, travelled with Marco Polo to the court of Kubla Khan rich with jewels and spices and learned to identify the four major breeds of cattle on Ontario farms. To this very day from the highway I can still tell a Black Angus from a Holstein and cherish my rich blue semi-precious lapis lazuli necklace.

Thank you to the Kinmount Committee for Planning and Economic Development for the harvest theme decorations all around town. A special appreciation goes out to the Kinmount Guiding Unit for the delightful scarecrows guarding the Artisans Marketplace. The winner of the gift certificate for the marketplace in the trivia contest over the Thanksgiving Harvest Homecoming weekend was Deanna Joyce of Pickering, Ont. Please note that the Kinmount Artisans Marketplace is now open on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The pumpkins around town remind that Halloween is approaching and that the annual free Halloween Party will be held on Saturday, Oct. 29 in the Kinmount Community Centre from 6:30 to 9 p.m. There will be lots of fun for the family with a costume contest, games, prizes and dancing. The snack bar will be available by donation and non-perishable items for the food bank appreciated.

Ontario Public Library Week continues through to Oct. 22. At the Kinmount Branch there are special draws and my favourites a card amnesty in effect and overdue fines cleared by food bank donations. There are a variety of programs for different ages at the branch including an After School Drop-In Tuesdays at 4:30 p.m.. but please call 705-488-3199 to register.

Here are some dates for your late October and November calendar. The annual Christmas Craft Sale at the Burnt River Community Centre hosted by the Burnt River United Church will be held on Saturday, Oct. 29 starting at 10 a.m. with lunch available. There will be two turkey dinners here in Kinmount one at the Galway Hall and one at the Legion Branch 441 both on Saturday, Nov. 5. This duplication in 2016 is apparently linked to the calendar with the Legion traditionally holding its dinner on the Saturday before Remembrance Day and the Galway Hall dinner set for the beginning of the hunting season. Watch for more details in next week's column. The Kinmount and Area Artisans Guild will hold its annual Mistletoe Magic Christmas Sale on Saturday, Nov. 19 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Kinmount Community Centre with member vendors, a Bake Sale, Country Raffle and lunch available. Here is a great opportunity to get ahead on your Christmas list.

In spite of this warm weather when thinking ahead to Christmas the Tree Lighting at the Kinmount Railway Station yards will be early on Thursday, Dec. 1 this year and Santa Day will follow on Saturday, Dec. 3 with more details to follow.

Well this Tuesday afternoon's game is critical for our Toronto Blue Jays. Go Jays Go and for the rest of us keep busy and well - they go together . . .

Novices keep winning streak alive

On Saturday, Oct. 15, the Haliburton Timber Mart Highland Storm novice team travelled to Omeme to play against the Kawartha Coyotes. Their excellent passing, skating and overall team play at both ends of the ice led to another win for the Storm. The final tally was 6-1.

On Sunday, Oct. 16, the team was back in action this time in Port Carling against Muskoka Rock for the first time this season. The Storm opened the scoring early in the first period and were relentless for the remainder of the game. All Storm players contributed to the offensive attack and put forth another strong team showing. The novice team is back in action next Saturday at a tournament in Fenelon Falls.

Atoms play hard through tournament

The Cottage Country Building Supplies Highland Storm Atoms played the Lindsay Muskies for their opening game of the Matt Duchene Fall Classic tournament on Saturday, Oct. 15 at the A.J. La Rue arena. Unfortunately the Storm fought hard but lost 2-0.

They played the Sturgeon Lake Thunder for their second game of the tournament. Austin Boylan scored the first goal of the game unassisted in the first period, however, the Thunder tied the game a minute later. The game stayed tied until halfway into the second period when Boylan scored two goals giving him a hat trick and making the score 3-1. Two minutes later Addison Carr scored his first goal and then his second goal and the Storm went into the third period with a 5-1 lead. The Thunder scored halfway in the third period but Aidan Perrot scored two minutes later and Avery Degeer scored with three minutes left of the game making the final score 7-2.

The Storm played the Mariposa Lightning for their third game. Both teams fought hard however the final score was 0-0 making them both face off at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

For the semi final game the Storm faced off against the Mariposa Lightning. It was a close game with both teams wanting the win.

The score went back and forth however the Storm came out on top with a win of 5-3 and a spot in the finals. Goals were scored by Austin Boylan, Aidan Perrott, Logan Tripp and Addison Carr.

For the finals the team faced off against the Muskies. The finals started with Lindsay scoring in the first period. It stayed 1-0 into the third period until Avery Degeer scored a beauty goal to make it 1-1. However in the last four minutes the Muskies scored two goals making it 3-1. The Muskies made it 4-1 in the last minute on an empty net.

All of the CCBS Highland Storm played an amazing tournament.

640 IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of
JAMES FREDRICK (JIM) REYNOLDS

Born July 11, 1938 to Parents Fred & Ada Reynolds, Jim passed away on Sunday September 4, 2016 in his 79th year at Haliburton Hospital with cancer.

Former husband of Wanda Reynolds (nee Bain). Loving father of Kelly (Chris Harrison) and Curtis (Brandi Hewson). Beloved "Bampi" of Kendall, Kiefer, Beckam, and Maddex. Dear brother Bill (Blythe Cooper) Gloria, Neil (Sheila Brice) and Merrie (Merrill Barry). Predeceased by his daughter Lee Ann and brothers Ben, Bob and sisters Frances, Barbara and Joy. Also lovingly remembered by his son-in-law Christopher Sergi and many nieces and nephews.

Jim operated his own business "James Reynolds Trucking" for many years. Jim was a hard worker all his life and he loved country music and dancing.

To the outside world we all grow old, but not to our brothers and sisters. We know each other as we always were. We know each others hearts and share private jokes. Like "Do you remember when this happened?" We remember family times, secrets, griefs and joys. We live outside the touch of time.

It has been wonderful being part of a large family of 10. Its fun to sit and listen to old stories of our family and also of Haliburton.

We will miss our brother Jim. He had a great memory and knew everyone. He had lots of stories to tell.

Thank you Jim, for being our brother.

Love & Kisses,
Your Family
